PADRE SERRA SAYS:

The following is from Sr. Sarah Marie Sherman, RSM, on "Why Religious Life?": "Who are the women who are choosing religious life today? Why, with the distractions and opportunities of today's world, would they want religious life? . . . These women are better educated and professionally prepared. . . . Their level of spiritual maturity and personal autonomy is generally more developed. "These women . . . have learned that to share life, prayer and service in community is still a truly rewarding and fulfilling vocation, but it requires a mature person, both psychologically and spiritually, to commit oneself to this lifestyle. The women choosing religious life today are coming basically for the same reason that women have always chosen religious life — because it provides an alternative way of living the Gospel. They want to be of service to others as Jesus was, and community gives them support, companionship, encouragement for what is best in them and challenges what still needs to grow." Theses women join religious life because, ultimately, they believe they are called by Jesus. If you are interested in a religious life, consider visiting members of a religious community in your area. Pray for vocations, including your own.
